REASONS FOR ALLOWANCE

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

Regarding Independent claims 1 and 13

The prior art of record neither anticipates nor fairly and reasonably teaches a method of providing project and product information to a corporate purchaser of floor covering materials using an internet-based Web site system, inter alia, the method comprising:

identifying one or more users authorized to access the Web site of the Web site system on behalf of said corporate purchaser of floor covering materials, wherein said corporate purchaser of floor covering materials is a corporate entity having a plurality of business locations; and in response to an entry of personalized registration information from a remote computing device by an individual user, linking said individual user to said customer specific URL by system software, wherein the customer specific URL further includes a link to an order page for said individual user to place an order with a manufacturer of said floor covering materials by a remote computing device, and wherein the order page is linked to a listing of floor covering materials preauthorized by said corporate purchaser of floor covering materials such that the order placed by the individual user is limited to such preauthorized floor covering materials.

The most remarkable prior art of record is to Thompson (U.S. Patent No. 6,393,410). Thompson discloses a secure web-based method and system for communicating and managing project information. The method allows for storing project-related information including project documentation in a database. The method allows for posting over a global communications network to selected project participants a plurality of project tasks. Thompson does not expressly disclose a secure web-based method and system for communicating and managing project information wherein said project participants are corporate purchasers of floor covering materials, wherein said corporate purchaser of floor covering materials is a corporate entity having a plurality of business locations, and wherein an order page is linked to a listing of floor covering materials preauthorized by said corporate purchaser of floor covering materials such that the order placed by the individual user is limited to such preauthorized floor covering materials. Moreover, none of the prior art of record remedies the deficiencies found in Thompson.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
